CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 20.—Yesterday's session of the W. C. T. U. was not so well attended as previous sessions of the convention. On the platform, besides the secretaries, sat Miss Frances Willard, the president; Mother Thompson, Mother Stewart, Mrs. Helen M. Barker, treasurer of the union, and others. Huge bouquets of chrysanthemums graced the platform. Reports of superintendents were taken up under the evangelistic department, the general topic being "What are the different departments grouped under the head of evangelistic doing to save from the sin of intemperance, and what results can each report as contributing to the overthrow of the liquor traffic and the establishment of God's kingdom?" Miss E. W. Greenwood of Brooklyn told of the distribution of evangelistic literature and of arrangements for simultaneous prayer meetings in different localities. So recommended a return to the system of holding an hour of prayer from 11 to 12 o'clock in the morning at national conventions. Her report was adopted. Mrs. Minnie English of Illinois made a very favorable report concerning work among the miners. Mrs. E. G. Hibben, who was to have reported on unfermented wine; Mrs. Esther I. MARY WOOD ALLEN.

for use in cloaks, and urged her hearers to look into what she termed the horrors of the slaughter house. She offered a resolution, which was unanimously adopted, urging the creation of a sentiment among the young people of the country against the practice of vivisection, which she announced as cruel and unnecessary for the promotion of science. Rev. Mary Wood Allen next responded for the purity department. She complained of a lack of funds to carry out the work of the department, but otherwise offered an encouraging report. Mrs. C. M. Woodward reported for work among railroad men, which, barring the interruption caused by the big strike, had been very encouraging. Miss Greenwood of Brooklyn was granted an extention of time in which to continue her report.

When the afternoon session was resumed Mrs. Emelia D. Martin, national superintendent of the department of purity in literature and art, reported and recommended the reading of certain specified books and publications. Cummings of south Africa spoke briefly, telling of the enthusiasm of the white ribboners of the dark continent. Mrs. Shorer of Wisconsin spoke briefly. Mrs. E. A. Blair of California, who for two years has traveled 12,000 miles by rail, wagon and canal boat, said she had organized thirty-four temperance leagues and had devoted her entire time to the work. PLUNGED TO DEATH THROUGH A BRIDGE

FIVE MEN KILLED NEAR PITTSBURG, PA.

Were Miners Riding on a Train that Went Through the Broken Structure and Were Crushed to Death in the Wreckage—Fatal Explosion at Huntington, Pa.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 20.—Five men lie at the bottom of Brush creek, Westmoreland county, with sixteen cars and their loads of coal piled on top of them. The killed:

BROWN, WILSON, 40 years old, married.
JENKINS, THOMAS, 60 years old, married.
JENKINS, WILLIAM, son of the above, 25 years old, single.
OWENS, OWEN, 35 years old, married.
POLAKCSY, MARTIN, 30 years old, single.

Yesterday afternoon a train of twenty-five cars of coal pulled out of the Westmoreland Coal company's works, three miles from Larimer, Pa. Just before reaching the main line the trucks of one car broke down. The impetus of the train carried it onto the bridge across Brush creek and broke down the structure. The disabled car went through and was followed by fifteen more cars, all loaded.

A number of miners employed by the Westmoreland Coal company were riding on the train to their homes at Larimer. The men on the other cars jumped and escaped with a few bruises. A wrecking crew is now at work raising the cars in the creek, but it will be some time before the bodies of the dead men are reached. The accident occurring on a coal road branch, traffic was not interfered with on the main line.

Brakeman Carroll, who was on the rear of the train, saw the men when they left the mines for home. He said that there was between five and eight miners on the cars that went down. It is certain that five men have been killed, as this number left the mines when the train started, and this number are missing from their homes. One body, that of Owen Owens, has been recovered and is the only one that was taken from the debris. It was found nearly at the top of the cars and was crushed almost beyond recognition. After working for four hours with the wreck it was decided that nothing more could be done then and the other bodies would have to remain under the ruin for a time.

The wreck will entail a heavy loss to the Westmoreland Coal company, as fifteen of the wrecked cars belonged to them and they are almost a total wreck.

On the left were the foreign ambassadors and ministers and their staffs, while grouped around in different parts of the cathedral were countless delegations from Russian cities and elsewhere, including the numerous delegations from France. MUCH WORK DONE BY THE ALDERMEN

SUIT AGAINST THE WATER COMPANY REFERRED

Public Meeting Called to Discuss it—No More Electric Lights Until the Oil Contract Expires—Grundy Judgment Ordered Paid—Street Railway Franchise Referred.

Transferring the matter of suing the Water Company to the people; referring the amendment to the Street Railway franchise to the highway and bridge committee; resolving that no more electric lights be put on until the oil lamp contract expired; E. J. Schottle's claim that grading Fifth avenue would damage his property $800 worth; allowing H. B. DeLong $120 for damages resulting from an overflowing gutter; considerable discussion in regard to a sewer from the new High school to the river; an order for the payment of the Grundy judgment and for the paving of River and Main streets; and the appointing of a committee to talk with the county in relation to the new poor house sewer, comprised the more important business that came before the common council last night.

The water works question was summarily disposed of by Mayor Thoroughgood's referring the matter to the tax payers.

"This is an important question," he said "and an expression of tax payers should be had before the council takes action. I will call a public meeting to be held on Thursday evening, trusting that tax payers will express their opinions."

The council directed the mayor to use his judgment in securing a place to hold the meeting, and the ordinance amending the street railway franchise was introduced, and referred to the highway and bridge committee. The object of the amendment is to relieve the street railway of the expense of keeping the street in repair between their rails.

An ordinance amending the auctioneer's license ordinance was read the first and second times and referred to the license committee. The amendment reduces the license from $100 to $25. Alderman Winslow said the amendment would allow foreign merchants to sell bankrupt stocks for a small fee, to the injury of trade which he desired to be guarded against, so the ordinance went over.

Row Over Electric Lights.

The electric light question was the next to come up. Alderman Smith, chairman of the light committee, reported back the petitions for additional lights, with the recommendation that no more lights be contracted for until the contract for oil lights expired, as the condition of the fund would not warrant an increase. Alderman Baines thought the recommendation rather broad. A number of streets in the city needed lights but Mayor Thoroughgood interrupted the discussion by remarking that the way the electric lights were being increased was not right. He desired to see the city properly lighted, but since the electric lights were put in five hundred dollars had been added to the expense by extensions and petitions for five more lights were now in the hands of the committee. The fund would not warrant additions, and he cautioned the council to move carefully. The matter was discussed at some length. Alderman Child remarking that when the question of putting in electric lights first came up it was understood that oil lamps would be dispensed with as they were pronounced a failure, but all at once it appeared the oil lamps were giving satisfaction. People in the Second ward were kicking him on all sides because the streets in that ward were not properly lighted. He was aware that additional lights cost money, and that the fund at present would not warrant extensions. Knowing this he had signed the committee recommendation. The matter was further explained by Alderman Smith, and the recommendation was adopted. The oil lamp contract expires next September.

Fire Alarm Box Wanted.

A petition signed by a large number of residents of Forest Park, asking for a fire alarm box at Jackman street and Garfield avenue, was referred to the fire and water committee with power to act.

C. J. Schottle gave notice that in case Fifth avenue was improved he would claim damages to the amount of $800. A petition of a majority of Fifth avenue property owners, requesting that the improvement be deferred, was referred to the highway committee.

The June, July, August, September and October reports of the school board was found correct and ordered ished. Health Officer Robioson's report showed but two cases of scarlet fever during the month both being convalescent. The claims of Mrs. E. M. Calf and Wm. Croak for rebate of taxes were disallowed, and the claim of William Masteson and L. P. Frost were allowed. The October reports of the city treasurer and the clerk of the municipal court were referred to the finance and judiciary committees. The saloon license held by William M. Cunningham was transferred to Boots & Murphy. A petition for an electric light at Highland avenue and Madison road was referred to the gas committee. The October report of the city marshal was referred to the police committee, found correct and filed Street Commissioner Hanthorn reported that he had built a number of sidewalks and the clerk was directed to tax the same against the property. W. W. Wills, appointed to superinted the paving of East Milwaukee street, reported that Contractors Ryan & Brown had completed the work according to specifications, and the superintendent's bill of $39.50 allowed.

Balances in Ward Funds.

The clerk reported that balances in ward funds were as follows: First ward, $843.47; second ward, $709.51; Third ward, $609.51; Fourth ward, $211.36; Fifth ward, $438.56. Alderman Baines, of the finance committee, reported in favor of a large number of accounts, which was concurred in. Further time was given the committee to consider the claim of ex-City Marshal Hogan. The report of the city treasurer for July, August and September were found correct and placed on file. H. B. DeLoug was allowed $120 in full for damage by the overflowing gutter. The highway committee reported adversely on the claim of W. H. & E. D. Tallman, relating to South River street pavement. Approved. Mayor Thoroughgood appointed Ed Inman, Fenner Kimball and A. H. Sheldon arbitrators in the Fifth a enue grade matter. The question of the right of the city to connect the high school sewerage with the private sewer on Dodge street belonging to David Jeffris, came up, Alderman Smith stating that Mr. Jeffris would give the city permission for $150, or would sell the sewer for $300, reserving the use for his flats and hotel. It was developed that Mr. Jeffris' franchise differed from others in that the city did not reserve the right to make connections; that in case connections were attempted the city could be enjoined, and the delays and litigation would cost more than the construction of a sewer. The matter was referred back to the committee for further investigation.

Many Orders Adopted.

Supplies were ordered purchased for the fire department and orders were adopted as follows: By Alderman Kothman—for sidewalks on Linn street and for block crosswalks on North and Jackson streets. By Alderman Baines—for the payment of the Grundy judgment and costs—$5,396.50, and for the payment of South River and South Main street paving. By Alderman Heddles, for block crosswalks, High, Pearl and Bluff streets. By Alderman Sutherland, for sidewalks on East Milwaukee street. Alderman Rich, directing that the city marshal enforce the ordinance in relation to depositing ashes and rubbish in the streets, and calling attention to the dump in front of the city hall. By Alderman Winslow, requesting the mayor to appoint a committee of five to confer with the county in relation to the sewer at the insane hospital. The mayor appointed Aldermen Smith, Child, Baines, Kothman and Winslow such committee. The city attorney expressed the opinion that the city could do nothing to prevent the construction of the county sewer, but that the ice companies could maintain action.

A WEAK HEART.

What a Fearfully Dangerous Thing It Is.

And Yet How Few People Heed Its Terrible Warnings—What Does That Palpitation and Shortness of Breath Mean to You.

Persons of weak heart get out of breath easily and have palpitation on the least exertion. As it gets worse they have dizziness, swimming of the eye-sight, headache, faint, sicking feelings attended by strange sensations. There is generally more or less nervousness and sleeplessness.

It is fearfully common, and neglect is fatal. You can get well by taking the right medicine now. Mrs. Mary L. Robie, of Morrisville, Vt., states:

"For many years I have had heart disease. My family on both sides have been predisposed to it. I had terrible prickling sensations and numbness in my hands. I suffered terribly, and was greatly worried. I would be taken with bad spells and gasp for breath. It seemed as though I should die.

"Doctors did me no good, neither did medicines. At last I began using that wonderful medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. Well, I wish I could tell you the marvelous effects it had on me. I tell you it was simply wonderful.

"It helped me immediately, and I continued to steadily improve under its powerful influence. I am now seventy-seven years old, and owe my good health entirely to Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

"My grandfather died at 103 years of age; my father at 93. If they could only have had this medicine they might have reached a ripe old age. I cannot speak half highly enough of it."

If you have weak heart, weak nerves or bad blood, take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It cures. Dr. Greene, its discoverer, is our most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. He can be consulted free, personally or by letter, at his office, 35 West 14th Street, Now York City.

MURDERER HIGGINS WELL KNOWN HERE.

SHOT MRS. McLAUGHLIN AND HIMSELF AT CHICAGO.

He Superintended the Rebuilding of the Wisconsin Telephone Company's Lines in This City and Was Here Some Months, During Which Time Became Well Acquainted.

A man well known in Janesville committed a cold blooded murder in Chicago last Friday night, and then killed himself.

J. J. Higgins, was his name, and Mrs. P. J. McLaughlin was the victim of his ire.

Many Janesville people will remember Higgins as the man who had charge of the work as remodeling the Wisconsin Telephone company's lines in Janesville some time ago. He was here for some months, and became quite well acquainted.

Higgins was a good looking man, thirty-five years old, tall and slender. He had a black mustache that he was proud of, and was always well dressed. Mrs. McLaughlin was forty years old, and was a stylish dresser. Three weeks ago Higgins did not pay his room rent, and told Mrs. McLaughlin that he had lost his money gambling. The following week he made the same excuse. She told him that if he didn't pay his room rent he must leave. This angered Higgins. He told Mrs. McLaughlin that he would go and secure another room, and came back in the evening to pay her and took his trunk away.

Shot Her In the Head.

Later in the evening he returned and walked into the kitchen and told Mrs. McLaughlin that he had decided not to leave the house, but that he had secured a roommate and that he would like to rent a larger room. He asked her to step into the parlor with him to talk about it. She accompanied him and carried in her hand a case knife that she was using. Higgins locked the parlor doors after he and Mrs. McLaughlin had passed inside. Mrs. McLaughlin's son listened and heard sounds of a struggle. This was followed by four pistol shots. He heard his mother call for help, and he ran into the hallway just outside the parlor. Higgins then came out of the parlor, and when he saw the boy fired at him.

The patrol wagon was called for and Dr. T. T. Sealy accompanied the boy and others back to the house. Mrs. McLaughlin was found dying. A bullet had entered her head just above the right eye and had passed entirely through the skull, emerging from her left temple.

Higgins Kills Himself.

After shooting Mrs. McLaughlin, Higgins walked east on Monroe street. He heard the patrol wagon coming toward him and retraced his steps. He was walking on the north side of the street. He reloaded his revolver while walking. He fired four shots into his head, literally blowing the top of his skull off. The four shots were fired in very rapid succession. The weapon was clenched in his hand when he was found by Officer O'Day.

In the parlor where Mrs. McLaughlan lay were evidences of a fearful struggle. The rugs were disarranged and the furniture upset. There were three bullet holes in the wall. The blade of the case knife was bent, showing that Mrs. McLaughlin had made a strong fight against her murderer. Her artificial teeth had fallen out on the floor and her hair looked as if the murderer had held her by it when he fired the shot that ended her life.

You Deserve a Good Shaking,

And chills and fever will give it if you don't take defensive measures to escape the periodic scourge in a region where it is prevalent. The best safeguard and remedy is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is free from any objections applicable to quinine, and is infinitely more effeatual. Wherever on this continent and in the tropics malarial complaints are virulent and general, the Bitters is the recognized specific and preventive. It does not mitigate, but eradicates chills and fever, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake. For rheumatism, inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, for constipation, biliousness and nerve inquietude it is of the greatest efficacy, and the unsolicited testimony in its behalf of eminent medical men leave no reasonable doubt that it is one of the most reliable family medicines in existence. Use it continually, and by fits and starts.

A NARROW ESCAPE!

How it Happened.

The following remarkable event in a lady's life will interest the reader: "For a long time I had a terrible pain at my heart, which fluttered almost incessantly. I had no appetite and could not sleep. I would be compelled to sit up in bed and belch gas from my stomach until I thought every minute would be my last. There was a feeling of oppression about my heart, and I was afraid to draw a full breath. I couldn't sweep a room without sitting down and resting; but, thank God, by the help of New Heart Cure all that is past and I feel like another woman. Before using the New Heart Cure I had taken different so-called remedies and been treated by doctors without any benefit until I was both discouraged and disgusted. My husband bought me a bottle of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and am happy to say I never regretted it, as I now have a splendid appetite and sleep well. I weighed 125 pounds when I began taking the remedy, and now I weigh 136½ Its effect in my case has been truly marvelous. It far surpasses any other medicine I have ever taken or any benefit I ever received from physicians."—Mrs. Harry Starr, Pottsville, Pa., October 12, 1892.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee by all druggists, or by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles $5, express prepaid. This great discovery by an eminent specialist in heart disease, contains neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

Matrimonial Engagements Are Blithely Entered Into in Kentucky.

A Mr. Godwin of Camillo and S. A. Davis of Pelham, Ga., both towns being in the same county, were last week visiting John Burgess of Bowen, in Powell county, this state. Mr. Godwin married a sister of the wife of Mr. Burgess, but she died a few years since, and on Thursday of last week he remarked to his host that he wouldn't mind marrying again if he could get some one to suit him. Mr. Burgess replied that he knew a lady in the town that would suit him and Godwin said he would go and see her. Friday morning he spruced up some and went over to see the lady, who during the day consented to change her name to Godwin. Returning to the home of Mr. Burgess, he informed him of his success, when Mr. Davis, being thus encouraged, and feeling lonely under the circumstances concluded that he would like also to marry. Mine hoste Burgess, ever ready to accommodate his visitors, told him that he could find him a helpmate also, at the same time stating her name and where she could be found. Saturday Mr. Davis repaired to the residence of the lady named, and, after some commonplace talk and an explanation of his mission, she too agreed to wed a Georgian Preparations were made for the event, and on Monday night the two couples were duly installed into the matrimonial harness. The bridegrooms being much elated at their matrimonial success, set 'em up to the crowd to the extent of a gallon of red liquor each, and quite a jollification was held. On Tuesday morning the preacher was paid his fee for the double services, and he, too, set 'em up to the crowd for a drink all 'round to those in the bar-room.—Hazel Green Herald.

SO LIKE A GIRL!

But Everybody Loves Them Just as They Are.

It was in a Lewiston horse car of the uptown line the other evening, after the performance of "Shore Acres," when everything was crowded. Among the party who entered after the car was crowded were three young ladies. Each of them grasped a strap and stood. One of the girls who lifted her gloved hand had a beautiful bracelet upon her wrist. A middle aged man jumped up and offered her a seat. She declined, waving one of her friends into it. Then a young man who is interested in the Lewiston Y. M. C. A. jumped up and offered his seat. The young lady bowed and told a lady back of her to sit. Then several gentleman proffered her seats, but she declined them all with a sweet smile. After she left the car she said to her friend, "I'm awfully tired, I can hardly drag one foot after the other." "You ought to be," was the reply, "Why?" "You should have sat down in the car." "Yes, but that was Mrs. S——, and I want to make friends with her." "I know, but even then there were seats offered." "Mabel," said the pretty girl suddenly, "don't be a blockhead. Do you suppose I was going to sit down when my bracelet was showing off just lovely?" Lewiston Journal.

RUBIES AND SAPPHIRES.

The Same Stones, Only Differently Colored.

The finest "pigeon blood" rubies come from Burma, those from Siam or Ceylon being too dark or too pale, and the Montana stones being cloudy and brown. A perfect one carat specimen may cost $600, while a diamond of the finest water of the same size can be bought for $125, says the Houston Post. The rich color of the ruby, a color which does not blacken like the blue sapphire by night, is supposed to be due to a trace of oxide of chromium, but this is still a moot point with chemists, and all are not even agreed as to the sapphire's velvet tinge.

This latter stone is much less valuable than ruby, being found larger and more abundantly. Sapphires really present all colors, the pure white variety, when skillfully cut, being difficult to tell from a diamond. This is a deception dishonest jewelers frequently practice to catch the unwary. Both rubies and sapphires are occasionally met with as "star stones"—that is, opaque cabochon-cut gems showing the perfect steely rays of a star. A star ruby is excessively rare, but the sapphire star is fairly common.

Said of Clara Barton.

Clara Barton, the "angel of the battlefield," was among the spectators at the railroad station at Washington when the regiment arrived there from Baltimore, where the first blood had been shed, She nursed the forty men, the wounded victims of the Baltimore mob, and from that day she shared the sufferings and risks of the soldiers in the Union army to the great close. At Andersonville she was able to identify all but four hundred of the thirteen thousand graves of buried soldiers. Brigade Surgeon James L. Dunn, after the battle of Antietam, said the great joy with which the sick and wounded hailed her and her mule team as she arrived with a wagon load of bandages, just as everything had given out, was indescribable. He ends his eulogy by saying: "In my feeble estimation, Gen. McClellan, with all his laurels, sinks into insignificance beside the true heroine of the age—the 'angel of the battlefield.' "

CLARA BARTON.

Ready for the Trial.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—District Attorney Bierney has notified all of the persons indicted for refusing to answer questions before the senate sugar investigating committee, including Messrs. Havemeyer and Searles, that they must appear and plead or demur to the indictments. It is expected that demurrers will be filed.

CASSIMERE ulsters very heavy and fine $3.50 each at Ziegler's.

FROM $2.50 to $7.50 is the way we are selling suits and overcoats. Such low prices are surely in accordance with the times we do not make money on them, but we are determined to show the people that we do buy goods from 15 to 25 per cent less than the other clothiers, and don't try to make as much profit. See our large display advertisement. T. J. Ziegler.

W. H. GALLUP'S HOUSE GOES UP IN SMOKE

SERIOUS THIRD WARD BLAZE THIS AFTERNOON.

Blaze Started From an Unknown Cause in the Rear Part of the Structure Which Was to Far Away From the Water Mains to Be Saved by the Firemen.

THE dwelling house of William Gallup, 12 Clifton street, was totally consumed by fire between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon, entailing a loss of six or seven hundred dollars. The fire originated from some unknown cause in the rear, and quickly spread, enveloping the entire building. An alarm was turned in from box 36, but the great distance from the water main prevented the department getting water on the fire.

PEOPLE held their breath last night when they saw Robert Arnold's heavy team come dashing down the steep hill at Court street. They made a bee line for the open cellar of the Wilcox ruins but ran into a lamp at the corner of Park street which kept them from plunging into the hole. The team made a complete wreck of the heavy wagon, part of which was left near East street. With the front wheels the team made their wicked run down the hill and strange to say they were not injured. The boulevard lamp was completely wrecked, and very little resemblance of a wagon was found.

PAPERS ARE SERVED IN THE WATER SUIT

THE ACTION WAS BEGUN YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Documents Were Presented to the Company's Representatives at 4:30 O'clock and Just What Bearing the Proceedings Will Have on Thursday Night's Meeting is Not Known.

The suit in which the city of Janesville is plaintiff and the Janesville Water company is defendent has been begun. The papers were served at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Just what bearing the beginning of the suit will have on the meeting of tax payers called for Thursday night, is not known. Mayor Thoroughgood announces that the meeting will be held in Concordia hall and he requests a full attendance.

The main question to come before the meeting is supposed to be that of purchasing the plant by the city, although the direct question is that relating te the proceedings to annul the company's franchises. The question of purchasing the plant is one that demands careful consideration and conclusions ought to be carefully and deliberately approached that no mistakes will be made.

The meeting should be attended by all tax-payers who feel an interest in the matter on either side.

MANY FOLKS COME HERE TO TRADE.

Merchants In Other Towns Complain Of Loss Of Business.

Edgerton and Clinton merchants are complaining that people of those towns come to Janesville to trade instead of patronizing local stores. It is no more than natural that Janesville should be the center of the mercantile business of the county. No dealers in a smaller town carry the stock of goods that Janesville stores do. The latter are stocked with a choice assortment of fine goods; much more so than the average of a town of the size. They are getting a good trade both at home and from the surrounding towns as well. This is the direct result of their advertising. Janesville merchants have stock on their shelves that people did not know could be had outside of Chicago or Milwaukee, but advertising has made them aware of the fact. The advertiser sets the pace and Gazette advertisers are the ones who are in the lead. Nearly every person in Rock county reads either the daily or weekly Gazette, therefore they are the best mediums in Rock County. Buy space in them and the readers will buy goods in your store.

Standing Room Only.

That's what you will find in our shoes enough space to make the wearer feel comfortable and just snug enough to eliminate wrinkles and bags. We are opposed to the foregoing on scientific principles and annihilate them by the latter process. Our shoes are capable of standing a good deal but no matter how hard the strain they die of old age while their brow (metaphor of course) remains smooth, therefore piece and contentment reigneth. Brown Bros. & Lincoln.

One Hundred Feet of Fruit.

The side walk in front of Grubb Bros. grocery was lined for one hundred feet this morning with Curtice Bros. canned goods, over one hundred dozen cans sold and ready for delivery. Every family in town which wishes to have the highest grade of canned fruits and vegetables should examine these goods. In making these deliv. ies about 15 per cent. is saved to you.

American Fat Stock Show at Chicago.

For the American Fat Stock Show at Chicago, Nov. 20 to Dec. 1, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway will sell excursion tickets at a fare and a third round trip, Nov. 19, and each following Tuesday and Thursday during the show, good for return until Monday following date of sale.

Ball Number Two.

The second dance of the Concordia series will take place Tuesday evening, November 27. It will be much better than any preceding ball, as the Concordia society will endeavor to make it so, and when they attempt anything it is generally as they desire.

THE Lowell Hardware Co. will sell in the neighborhood of $15,000 worth of goods for cash this month. They have been the means of bringing people twenty-five and thirty miles to buy in this town. If all the merchants were as energetic as this concern, we would have a much better town. Mr. Lowell is, at the present time selling the bankrupt stock of hardware he bought at the Holloway & Johnson bankrupt sale. Everything is going at fifty cents on the dollar nine days more.

NINE more days to buy stoves and hardware at fifty cents on the dollar, at the Holloway & Johnson bankrupt sale. Lowell Hardware Co.

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES WORK.

Sixty Families Cared For in the Year Past.

The annual meeting of the Associated Charities was held last evening at the rooms of the association, and officers were elected as follows:

President—W. G. Palmer.
Secretary—Miss M. Chittenden.
Treasurer—John G. Rexford.
Vice presidents for the several wards:
First ward—Mrs. E. D. Tallman.
Second ward—Mrs. C. D. Child.
Third ward—Mrs. C. S. Jackman.
Fourth ward—Mrs. John Hyzer.
Fifth ward—Mrs. F. M. Marzluff.
Vice President at Large—Mrs. F. F. Stevens.

Miss Chittenden declined a reelection, but the others insisted that she serve again, so she finally consented. Her annual report as secretary outlined the work that had been done and made suggestions for the future. The past year had been an exceptional one owing to the business depression and citizens were asked to donate and help the association out. The coming winter, she predicted, would be a good deal the same if not worse, and clothing, money. etc., would be greatly needed. While it was right to help the fire sufferers yet our citizens seemed to forget, "Ye have the poor always with you." To give money, etc., to persons who ask it in the street, at the door or in the business office was worse than useless she insisted. The association had aided sixty two families, most of them several times, and had given out 450 articles of clothing. They had asked through the press for clothing, yet they had not received it but thanks were due to the Traveling Men's association for a donation of $70; Janesville fire police company, $13 50; F. S. Winslow for twenty pair of shoes; S. C. Cobb and others of the Janesville Machine company for one ton hard and one ton soft coal; the employes of the Janesville Machine company for coal and wood to the amount of $14; Leo Meyer of the Bee Hive, and Mr. McHenry, of Columbia store for underwear, and William Payne for $40. Just before Christmas there were left on the table four boxes from the School for the Blind. The two smaller boxes contained, one some bead work and two aprons, the other a little boy's tie, a doughnut wrapped in paper and four pennies. These showed a sacrifice on the part of some child. The report closed with the suggestion for a change in officers except the president and treasurer and recommended Mrs. F. F. Ctevens as secretary.

CHOLERA FEEDS ON FINE BRED HOGS

THE ARISTOCRATIC PORKERS ARE MOST AFFECTED.

No Cases Are Known Where the Coarser Breeds are Attacked, While Fine Poland Chinas Die by the Wholesale—Remedies Have Apparently no Effect.

Hog cholera is still raging throughout the county and strange to say the disease seems to single out the finest bred and most valuable animals. Thomas H. Edden of the town of Harmony, is having especially hard luck. He has lost fifty-five so far and now has but eight left, some of these being affected and will probably die.

"I have tried nearly every known remedy," said Mr. Edden today, "but nothing so far appears to cure or even help the hogs."

The disease continues in many other localities, and will probably not be stayed until the herds have been exterminated. The opinion is expressed by a number of farmers that the disease is most severe in herds of thoroughbreds, especially among fine bred Poland-Chinas. Force is given to this opinion by the statement that the disease does not or has not affected hogs of the coarser breeds, or crosses with coarse breeds.

OVERDRAW CHECKS ARE THE BEST

Patsy Naughton Writes In Favor of Their General Use.

EDITOR GAZETTE—I would like to say to our friends of the society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, that what looks like a severity or cruelty, is sometimes on investigation found to be not what it appears, and it is even a help and comfort to the beast. For instance, the overdraw check on horses, which is a severe looking attachment, but which has become popular, is the most practical and humane appliance ever attached to a harness and is used in most cases as a support and rest more than as a restraint. It brings the bearings on the face of the horse instead of across the top of the head, just back of the ears, as with the side draw check. Many horses go crazy from the pressure at the base of the brain while wearing the apparently more humane side draw check, that work all right with an ovhr-draw check, as in one case they carry the weight on the one narrow strap across the base of the brain, while in the other case they lean, as it were, their weight against the check and are thus supported and assisted in the work. Those who have the best horses are generally the ones who love them best. Yours respectfuliy,

PATSY NAUGHTON.

Another Bankrupt Stock.

This is the twelfth bankrupt stock of hardware The Lowell Hardware Company has closed out this year. Much has been said, in other cities, about Mr. Lowell being a hustler, and his competitors here know quite a little about him in this respect also but they never had the real pleasure of seeing him at the head of a bankrupt sale until within the last week. Mr. Lowell bought the bankrupt stock of Holloway & Johnson and he is closing it out. Everybody knows that but perhaps there are some who do not know how cheap it is going. Right here in the winter time stoves are very essential, and you can get good ones the best for $1.00 and up. The place is simply packed with people all the time, and as the sale grows older the crowd becomes more denser. Nine more days, come quick.

WHEN I WAS A BOY.

Up in the attic where I slept
When I was a boy, a little boy,
In through the lattice the moonlight crept,
Bringing a tide of dreams that swept
Over the low red trundle bed,
Bathing the tangled curly head,
While moonbeams played at hide and seek
With the dimples on each sun browned cheek—
When I was a boy—a little boy!

And, oh, the dreams, the dreams I dreamed
When I was a boy—a little boy!
For the grace that through the lattice streamed
Over my folded eyelids seemed
To have the gift of prophecy
And to bring me glimpses of times to be
Where manhood's clarion seemed to call.
Ah, that was the sweetest dream of all
When I was a boy—a little boy!

I'd like to sleep where I used to sleep
When I was a boy—a little boy!
For in at the lattice the moon would peep,
Bringing her tide of dreams to sweep
The crosses and griefs of the years away
From the heart that is weary and faint today,
And those dreams should give me back again
The peace I have never known since then
When I was a boy—a little boy!
—Eugene Field in Chicago Record.

SILENT SISTERS.

They had quarreled in girlhood and mutually declared their intention never to speak to each other again, wetting and drying their forefingers to the accompaniment of an ancient childish incantation, and while they lived on the paternal farm they kept their foolish oath with the stubbornness of a slow country stock, despite the alternate coaxing and chastisement of their parents, notwithstanding the perpetual everyday contact of their lives, through every vicissitude of season and weather, of sowing and reaping, of sun and shade, of joy and sorrow.

Death and misfortune did not reconcile them, and when their father died and the old farm was sold up they traveled to London in the same silence, by the same train, in search of similar situations. Service separated them for years, though there was only a stone's throw between them. They often stared at each other in the streets. Honor, the elder, married a local artisan; 2½ years later Mercy, the younger, married a fellow workman of Jane's husband. The two husbands were friends and often visited each other's houses, which were on opposite sides of the same sordid street, and the wives made them welcome. Neither Honor nor Mercy suffered an allusion to the breach. It was understood that their silence must be received in silence.

Each of the sisters had a quiverful of children, who played and quarreled together in the streets and in one another's houses, but not even the street affrays and mutual grievances of the children could provoke the mothers to words. They stood at their doors in impotent fury, almost bursting with the torture of keeping their mouths shut against the effervescence of angry speech. When either lost a child, the other watched the funeral from her window, dumb as the mutes.

The years rolled on, and still the river of silence flowed between their lives. Their good looks faded. The burden of life and of their childbearing was heavy upon them. Gray hairs streaked their brown tresses, then brown hairs streaked their gray tresses. The puckers of age replaced the dimples of youth. The years rolled on, and Death grew busy among the families. Honor's husband died, and Mercy lost a son, who died a week after his wife. Cholera took several of the younger children. But the sisters themselves lived on, bent and shriveled by toil and sorrow even more than by the slow frost of the years.

Then one day Mercy took to her deathbed. An internal disease, too long neglected, would carry her off within a week. So the doctor told Jim, Mercy's husband.

Through him the news traveled to Honor's eldest son, who still lived with her. By the evening it reached Honor.

As Honor entered Mercy's sickroom, with pursed lips, a light leaped into the wasted, wrinkled countenance of the dying creature. She raised herself slightly in bed, her lips parted, then shut tightly, and her face darkened.

Honor turned angrily to Mercy's husband, who hung about impotently. "Why did you let her run down so low?" she said. "I didn't know," the old man stammered, taken back by her presence even more than by her question. "She was always a woman to say nothin."

Honor put him impatiently aside and examined the medicine bottle on the bedside table.

"Isn't it time she took her dose?"

"I dessay."

Honor snorted wrathfully. "What's the use of a man?" she inquired as she carefully measured out the fluid and put it to her sister's lips, which opened to receive it and then closed tightly again.

"How is your wife feelin now?" Honor asked after a pause.

"How are you now, Mercy?" asked the old man awkwardly. The old woman shook her head. "I'm a-goin fast, Jim," she grumbled weakly, and a tear of self pity trickled down her parchment cheek.

"What rubbidge she do talk," cried Honor sharply. "Why d'ye stand there like a tailor's dummy? Why don't you tell her to cheer up?"

"Cheer up, Mercy!" quavered the old man hoarsely.

But Mercy groaned instead and turned fretfully on her other side, with her face to the wall.

"I'm too old; I'm too old," she moaned. "This is the end o' me."

"Did you ever hear the like?" Honor asked Jim angrily as she smoothed his wife's pillow. "She was always conceited about her age, settin herself up as the equals of her elders, and here am I, her elder sister, as carried her in my arms when I was 5 and she was 2, still hale and strong, and with no mind for underground for many a long day. Nigh three times her age I was once, mind you, and now she has the imperence to talk of dyin before me."

She took off her bonnet and shawl. "Send one o' the kids to tell my boy I'm stayin here," she said. "And then just you get 'em all to bed—there's too much noise about the house."

The children, who were orphaned grandchildren of the dying woman, were sent to bed, and then Jim himself was packed off to refresh himself for the next day's labors, for the poor old fellow still doddered about the workshop.

The silence of the sickroom spread over the whole house. About 10 o'clock the doctor came again and instructed Honor how to alleviate the patient's last hours. All night long she sat watching her dying sister, hand and eye alert to anticipate every which. No word broke the awful stillness.

The first thing in the morning Mercy's married daughter, the only child of hers living in London, arrived to nurse her mother. But Honor indignantly refused to be dispossessed.

"A nice daughter you are," she said, "to leave your mother lay a day and a night without a sight o' your ugly face!"

"I had to look after the good man and the little uns," the daughter pleaded.

"Then what do you mean by desertin them now?" the irate old woman retorted. "First you deserts your mother and then your husband and children. You just go back to them as needs your care. I carried your mother in my arms before you was born, and if she wants anybody else now to look after her let her just tell me so, and I'll be off in a brace o' shakes."

She looked defiantly at the yellow, dried up creature in the bed. Mercy's withered lips twitched, but no sound came from them. Jim, strung up by the situation, took the word. "You can't do no good up here, the doctor says. You might look after the kids down stairs a bit when you can spare an hour, and I've got to go to the shop. I'll send you a telegraph if there's a change," he whispered to the daughter, and she, not wholly discontented to return to her living interests, kissed her mother, lingered a little and then stole quietly away.

All that day the old women lingered together in solemn silence, broken only by the doctor's visit. He reported that Mercy might last a couple of days more. In the evening Jim replaced his sister-in-law, who slept perforce. At midnight she awoke and sent him to bed. The sufferer tossed about restlessly. At 2:30 she awoke, and Honor fed her with some broth as she would have fed a baby. Mercy indeed looked scarcely bigger than an infant, and Honor had the advantage of her only by being puffed out with clothes. A church clock in the distance struck 3. Then the silence fell deeper. The watcher drowsed. The lamp flickered, tossing her shadow about the walls as if she, too, were turning feverishly from side to side. A strange ticking made itself heard in the wainscoting. Mercy sat up with a scream of terror. "Jim," she shrieked. "Jim!"

Honor listened, her blood curdling. Then she went toward the door and opened it. "Jim," she said in low tones, speaking toward the landing, "tell her it's nothin; it's only a mouse. She was always a nervous little thing." And she closed the door softly, and pressing her trembling sister tenderly back on the pillow tucked her up snugly in the blanket.

Next morning, when Jim was really present, the patient begged pathetically to have a grandchild with her in the room, day and night. "Don't leave me alone again," she quavered; "don't leave me alone, with not a soul to talk to." Honor winced, but said nothing.

The youngest child, who did not have to go to school, was brought—a pretty little boy with brown curls, which the sun, streaming through the panes, turned to gold. The morning passed slowly. About noon Mercy took the child's hand and smoothed his curls.

"My sister Honor had golden curls like that," she whispered.

"They were in the family, Bobby," Honor answered. "Your granny had them, too, when she was a girl."

There was a long pause. Mercy's eyes were half glazed, but her vision was inward now.

"The mignonette will be growin in the meadows, Bobby," she murmured.

"Yes, and the heartsease," said Honor softly. "We lived in the country, you know, Bobby."

"There is flowers in the country," Bobby declared gravely.

"Yes, and trees," said Honor. "I wonder if your granny remembers when we were larrupped for stealing apples?"

"Aye, that I do, Bobby. He, he!" croaked the dying creature, with a burst of enthusiasm. "We were a pair of tomboys. The varmer he ran after us, crying, 'Ye! Ye!' but we wouldn't take no gar. He, he, he!"

Honor wept at the laughter. The native idiom, unheard for half a century made her face shine under the tears. "Don't let your granny excite herself, Bobby. Let me give her a drink." She moved the boy aside, and Mercy's lips automatically opened to the draft.

"Tom was wi' us, Bobby," she gurgled, still vibrating with amusement, "and he tumbled over on the heather. He, he!"

"Tom is dead this 40 year, Bobby," whimpered Honor.

Mercy's head fell back, and an expression of supreme exhaustion came over her face. Half an hour passed. Bobby was called down to dinner. The doctor had been sent for. Suddenly Mercy sat up with a jerk. Mercy bent toward the side of the bed. "Ah, is Honor still there? Kiss me, Bobby." Her hands groped blindly. Honor bent down, and the old women's withered lips met.

And in that kiss Mercy passed away into the greater silence.—L. Zangwill in Outlook.

THF SORROWS OF EVER DAY LIFE

"THE SICK GENERAL" AS A SERMON'S SUBJECT.

God Does Not Want This World to Be Full of Happiness, Lest We Should Want to Remain Here—The Sorrows of Every Life.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 18, 1873—Here we have a warrior sick, not with pleurisies or rheumatism or consumption, but with a disease worse than all of these put together. A red mark has come out on the forehead, precursor of complete disfigurement and dissolution. I have something awful to tell you. General Naaman, the commander in chief of all the Syrian forces, has the leprosy! It is on his hands, on his face, on his feet, on his entire person. The leprosy! Get 'out of the way of the pestilence! If its breath strike you, you are a dead man. The commander in chief of all the forces of Syria! And yet he would be glad to exchange conditions with the boy at his stirrup or the hostler who blankets his charger. The news goes like wildfire all through the realm, and the people are sympathetic, and they cry out: "Is it possible that our great hero, who slew Ahab and around whom we came with such vociferation when he returned from victorious battle—can it be possible that our grand and glorious Naaman has the leprosy?" Yes. Everybody has some thing he wishes he had not. David, an Absalom to disgrace him; Paul, a thorn to sting him; Job, carbuncles to plague him; Samson, a Delilah to shear him; Ahab, a Naboth to deny him; Haman, a Mordecai to irritate him; George Washington, childlessness to afflict him; John Wesley, a termagant wife to pester him; Leah, weak eyes; Pope, a crooked back; Byron, a club foot; John Milton, blind eyes; Charles Lamb, an insane sister; and you, and you, and you, and you, something which you never bargained for, and would like to get rid of. The reason of this is that God does not want this world to be too bright; otherwise, we would always want to stay and eat these fruits, and lie on these lounges, and shake hands in this pleasant society. We are only in the vestibule of a grand temple. God does not want us to stay on the doorstep, and therefore he sends aches, and annoyances, and sorrows, and bereavements of all sorts to push us on, and push us up toward riper fruits, and brighter society, and more radiant prosperities. God is only whipping us ahead. The reason that Edward Payson and Robert Hall had more rapturous views of heaven than other people had was because, through their aches and pains, God pushed them nearer up to it. If God dashes out one of your pictures, it is only to show you a brighter one. If he sting your foot with gout, your brain with neuralgia, your tongue with an inextinguishable thirst, it is only because he is preparing to substitute a better than you ever dreamed of, when the mortal shall put on immortality. It is to push you on, and to push you up toward something grander and better, that God sends upon you, as he did upon General Naaman, something youdo not want. Seated in his Syrian mansion, all the walls glittering with the shields which he had captured in battle; the corridors crowded with admiring visitors, who just wanted to see him once, music and mirth and banqueting filling all the mansion from tessellated floor to pictured ceiling, Naaman would have forgotten that there was anything better, and would have been glad to stay there 10,000 years. But O, how the shields dim, and how the visitors fly the hall, and how the music drops dead from the string, and how the gates of the mansion slam shut with sepulchral bang as you read the closing words of the eulogium: "He was a leper! He was a leper!"

There was one person more sympathetic with General Naaman than any other person. Naaman's wife walks the floor, wringing her hands, and trying to think what she can do to alleviate her husband's suffering. All remedies have failed. The surgeon-general and the doctors of the royal staff have met, and they have shaken their heads, as much as to say: "No cure; no cure." I think that the office seekers had all folded up their recommendations and gone home. Probably most of the employes of the establishment had dropped their work and were thinking of looking for some other situation. What shall now become of poor Naaman's wife? She must have sympathy somewhere. In her despair she goes to a little Hebrew captive, a servant girl in her house, to whom she tells the whole story; as sometimes, when overborne by the sorrows of the world, and finding no sympathy anywhere else, you have gone out and found in the sympathy of some humble domestic—Rose, or Dinah, or Bridget—a help which the world could not give you.

What a scene it was: one of the grandest women in all Syria in cabinet council with a waiting maid over the declining health of the mighty general! "I know something," says the little captive maid. "I know something," as she bounds to her bare feet. "In the land from which I was stolen there is a certain prophet known by the name of Elisha, who can cure almost anything, and I shouldn't wonder if he could cure my master. Send for him right away." "Oh. hush!" you say. "If the highest medical talent in all the land can not cure that leper there is no need of your listening to any talk of a servant girl." But do not scoff, do not sneer. The finger of that little maid is pointing in the right direction. She might have said: "This is a judgment upon you for stealing me from my native land. Didn't they snatch me off in the night, breaking my father's and mother's heart? And many a time I have lain and cried all night because I was so homesick." Then, flushing up into childish indignation, she might have said: "Good for them: I'm glad Naaman's got the leprosy; I wish all the Syrians had the leprosy." No. Forgetting her personal sorrows, she sympathizes with the sufferings of her master, and commends him to the famous Hebrew prophet.

And how often it is that the finger of childhood has pointed grown persons in the right direction. O Christian soul, how long is it since you got rid of the leprosy of sin? You say: 'Let me see. It must be five years now." Five years. Who was it that pointed you to the divine physician 'O," you say, "it was my little Annie, or Fred, or Charley, that clambered on my knees, and looked into my face, and asked me why I didn't become a Christian, and, all the time stroking my cheek, so I couldn't get angry, insisted upon knowing why I didn't have family prayers." There are grandparents who have been brought to Christ by their little grandchildren. There are hundreds of Christian mothers who had their attention first called to Jesus by their little children. How did you get rid of the leprosy of sin? How did you find your way to the divine physician? "O," you say, "my child—my dying child, with wan and wasted finger, pointed that way. O, I never shall forget," you say, "that scene at the cradle and the crib that awful night. It was hard, hard, very hard; but if that little one on its dying bed had not pointed me to Christ, I don't think I ever would have got rid of my leprosy." Go into the Sabbath school any Sunday and you will find hundreds of little fingers pointing in the same direction, toward Jesus Christ and toward heaven.

Years ago the astronomers calculated that there must be a world hanging at a certain point in the heavens, and a large prize was offered for some one who could discover that world. The telescopes from the great observatories were pointed in vain; but a girl at Nantucket, Mass., fashioned a telescope, and looking through it discovered that star and won the prize, and the admiration of all the astronomical world, that stood amazed at her genius. And so it is often the case that grown people can not see the light, while some little child beholds the star of pardon, the star of hope, the star of consolation, the star of Bethlehem, the morning star of Jesus. "Not many mighty men, not many wise men are called; but God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the mighty; and base things, and things that are not, to bring to nought things that are." O, do not despise the prattle of little children when they are speaking about God, and Christ, and heaven. You see the way your child is pointing; will you take that pointing, or wait until, in the wrench of some awful bereavement, God shall lift that child to another world, and then it will beckon you upward? Will you take the pointing, or will you wait for the beckoning? Blessed be God that the little Hebrew captive pointed in the right direction. Blessed be God for the saving ministry of Christian children.

How the countrymen gaped as the procession passed! They had seen Naaman go past like a whirlwind in days gone by, and had stood aghast at the clank of his war equipments; but now they commiserate him. They say: "Poor man, he will never get home alive; poor man!"

General Naaman wakes up from a restless sleep in the chariot, and he says to the charioteer: "How long before we shall reach the Prophet Elisha?" The charioteer says to the waysider: "How far is it to Elisha's house?" He says: "Two miles." "Two miles?" Then they whip up the lathered and fagged out horses. The whole procession brightens up at the prospect of a speedy arrival. They drive up to the door of the prophet. The charioteers shout: "Whoa!" to the horses, and tramping hoofs and grinding wheels cease shaking the earth. Come out, Elisha, come out; you have company; the grandest company that ever came to your house has come to it now No stir inside Elisha's house. The fact was, the Lord had informed Elisha that the sick captain was coming, and just how to treat him. Indeed, when you are sick, and the Lord wants you to get well, he always tells the doctor how to treat you; and the reason we have so many bungling doctors is because they depend upon their own strength and instructions, and not on the Lord God, and that always makes malpractice. Come out, Elisha, and attend to your business. General Naaman and his retinue waited, and waited, and waited. The fact was, Naaman had two diseases—pride and leprosy; the one was as hard to get rid of as the other. Elisha sits quietly in his house and does not go out. After awhile, when he thinks he has humbled this proud man, he says to a servant: "Go out and tell General Naaman to bathe seven times in the River Jordan, out yonder five miles, and he will get entirely well." The message comes out: "What!" says the commander-in-chief of the Syrian forces. his eye kindling with an animation which it had not shown for weeks, and his swollen foot stamping on the bottom of the chariot, regardless of pain. "What! Isn't he coming out to see me? Why, I thought certainly he would come and utter some cabalistic words over me, or make some enigmatical passes over my wounds. Why, I don't think he knows who I am. Isn't he coming out? Why, when the Shunamite woman came to him, he rushed out and cried: 'Is it well with thee? is it well with thy husband? is it well with thy child?' and will he treat a poor unknown woman like that, and let me, a titled personage, sit here in my chariot and wait, and wait? I won't endure it any longer. Charioteer, drive on! Wash in Jordan! Ha! ha! The slimy Jordan—the muddy Jordan—the monotonous Jordan! I won't be seen washing in such a river as that. Why, we watered our horses in a better river than that on our way here—the beautiful river, the jasper-paved river of Pharpar. Besides that, we have in our country another Damascene river, Abana, with foliaged bank, and torrent ever swift and ever clear, under the flickering shadows of sycamore and oleander. Are not Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel?"

After all, it seems that this health excursion of General Naaman is to be a dead failure. That little Hebrew captive might as well have not told him of the prophet, and this long journey might as well not have been taken. Poor, sick, dying Naaman! Are you going away in high dudgeon, and worse than when you came? As his chariot halts a moment, his servants clamber up in it and coax him to do as Elisha said. They say: "It's easy. If the prophet had told you to walk for a mile on sharp spikes in order to get rid of this awful disease, you would have done it. It is easy. Come, my lord, just get down and wash in the Jordan. You take a bath every day anyhow, and in this climate it is so hot that it will do you good. Do it on our account, and for the sake of the army you command, and for the sake of the nation that admires you. Come, my lord, just try this Jordanic bath." "Well," he says, "to please you I will do as you say." The retinue drive to the brink of the Jordan. The horses paw and neigh to get into the stream themselves and cool their hot flanks. General Naaman, assisted by his attendant, gets down out of his chariot and painfully comes to the brink of the river, and steps in until the water comes to the ankle, and goes on deeper until the water comes to the girdle, and now standing so far down in the stream, just a little inclination of the head will thoroughly immerse him. He bows once into the flood and comes up and shakes the water out of nostril and eye; and his attendants look at him and say: "Why, general, how much better you do look." And he bows a second time into the flood and comes up, and the wild stare is gone out of his eye. He bows the third time into the flood and comes up, and the shriveled flesh has got smooth again. He bows the fourth time in the flood and comes up, and the hair that had fallen out is restored in thick locks again all over the brow. He bows the fifth time into the flood and comes up, and the hoarseness has gone out of his throat. He bows the sixth time and comes up, and all the soreness and anguish have gone out of the limbs. "Why," he says, "I am almost well, but I will make a complete cure," and bows the seventh time into the flood and he comes up, and not so much as a fester, or a scale, or an eruption as big as the head of a pin is to be seen on him. He steps out on the bank and says: "Is it possible?" And the attendants look and say: "Is it possible?" And as, with the health of an athlete, he bounds back into the chariot and drives on, there goes up from all his attendants a wild, "Huzza! Huzza!" Of course they go back to pay and thank the man of God for his counsel so fraught with wisdom. When they left the prophet's house, they went off mad; they have come back glad. People always think better of a minister after they are converted than they do before conversion. Now we are to them an intolerable nuisance, because we tell them to do things that go against the grain; but some of us have a great many letters from those who tell us that once they were angry at what we preached, but afterward gladly received the gospel at our hands. They once called us fanatics, or terrorists, or enemies; now they call us friends. Yonder is a man who said he would never come into the church again. He said that two years ago. He said: "My family shall never come here again if such doctrines as that are preached." But he came again, and his family came again. He is a Christian, his wife a Christian, all his children Christians, the whole household Christians, and you shall dwell with them in the house of the Lord forever. Our undying coadjutors are those who once heard the gospel, and "went away in a rage."

I suppose that was a great time at Damascus when General Naaman got back. The charioters did not have to drive slowly any longer, lest they jolt the invalid; but as the horses dashed through the streets of Damascus, I think the people rushed out to hail back their chieftain. Naaman's wife hardly recognized her husband; he was so wonderfully changed she had to look at him two or three times before she made out that it was her restored husband. And the little captive maid, she rushed out, clapping her hands and shouting: "Did he cure you? Did he cure you?" Then music woke up the palace, and the tapestry of the windows was drawn away, that the multitude outside might mingle with the princely mirth inside, and the feet went up and down in the dance, and all the streets of Damascus that night echoed and re-echoed with the news: "Naaman's cured! Naaman's cured!" But a gladder time than that it would be if your soul should get cured of its leprosy. The swiftest white horses hitched to the king's chariot would rush the news into the eternal city. Our loved ones before the throne would welcome the glad tidings. Your children on earth, with more emotion than the little Hebrew captive, would notice the change in your look and the change in your manner, and would put their arms around your neck and say: "Mother, I guess you must have become a Christian. Father, I think you have got rid of the leprosy." O, Lord, God of Elisha, have mercy on us!
